Welcome to EINA

EINA

The central axis of EINA is the University School of Design and Art, part of the Autonomous University of Barcelona. This learning environment was created towards the end of the 1960s in Barcelona with the aim of making design and art an instrument of social transformation through culture. eina idea and eina obra revolve around the University Centre, providing extracurricular learning environments connected to art and culture as well as industry and sustainability.

👉 EINA and UAB

EINA, centre Universitari de disseny i art is a private school linked to the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB). EINA benefits from the services offered by the UAB to its students, which include services aimed at students, teachers and administrative staff from other countries and accommodation services.

International welcome point (UAB)

We recommend that every foreign student who comes to study at EINA, as an Erasmus student, independent student or as part of the UAB Programme, should approach the International Support Service (ISS), where they will receive all type of help as well as the official UAB student card.

At the ISS, on Plaça Cívica, students will find all the information they need on arrival, have any queries about academic life answered, obtain their UAB student card, find out what activities are offered on campus, learn about the grants available, receive individual attention for finding accommodation, ask about university services and see what language courses they can enrol in.

They can also find out about arranging their NIE (Foreign Resident ID Card).

The International Support Service of the Autonomous University of Barcelona offers information to students, teachers and administrative and services staff from other countries.

Official accomodation University Village – Accommodation service on the Autonomous University of Barcelona campus or offcampus:

Nearly 40,000 people live on the UAB campus, enjoying the services they need to study and live in an ideal setting. The Autonomous University of Barcelona campus offers a number of services from accommodation in the University Village (homes for 2,000 people) to a broad range of places to eat and shop, making it possible to live in the university complex in optimum conditions.

This UAB service looks for accommodation both on the UAB campus and in Barcelona itself. All exchange and postgraduate students accepted by EINA (UAB) have the right to this service.

Complete the application form on the website and e-mail it to vila@vilauniversitaria.com.

For unofficial accommodation, check out the information in Appendix 1 "OTHER ACCOMMODATION CONTACTS".

Languages – Official Service (UAB)

It is strongly recommended that students taking part on international exchange programmes, such as Socrates/Erasmus in the European sphere or exchange with American universities, attend Spanish and/or Catalan courses. This language training will be of benefit to the academic result of their studies.

At EINA, classes are taught in either Catalan or Spanish without distinction. For foreign students, Spanish is the language of communication with others. Students with a low level of Spanish should take Spanish courses first to strengthen and improve their level. Students who already have a very good level of Spanish should take introductory courses in Catalan.

Foreign students are advised to take intensive courses of at least 1 month before attending classes at EINA. EINA, centre Universitari d'Art i Disseny, does not organise language courses. For this reason, the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB) has two language services:

— On the Bellaterra campus (outside Barcelona but very well connected with EINA with the Ferrocarrils de la Generalitat train service). Only for Erasmus and Postgraduate students. Not for “stage” students.

Academic Aspects

Lasting four years and with a teaching load of 240 credits, the degree course is split into four years (60 ECTS each). Access to the different levels of knowledge is distributed as follows:

First year Compulsory basic subjects that lay the foundation of knowledge in the field of arts and humanities.

Second and third years Compulsory subjects that constitute the core of the training in design.

Fourth year Optional subjects that ensure specific complementary training that can be organised in a mention or not depending on the student's criterion. The final degree project is completed during the fourth year.

14 EINA offers the Higher Graduate in Design Course in 5 different itineraries:

Graphic Design

Interior Design

Product Design

Visual Creation

Design Culture
